

Elusive Cease-Fire Still in Wings

By United Press International

The Saigon newspaper Tin Song, which often reflects the views of President Nguyen Van Thieu, said today the fighting in South Vietnam could come to an end as early as Feb. 3. Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn of Thailand said a cease-fire could be extended to Laos and Cambodia 10 days after the truce in Vietnam.

Thanom said after talks in Bangkok with Gen. Alexander Haig, President Nixon's envoy to Southeast Asia, that he expected the Vietnam cease-fire in the "near future" and that Haig would return to Saigon for more talks with Thieu "because there are some questions still to be worked out."

South Vietnamese Foreign Minister Tran Van Lam said in Saigon the United States and South Vietnam are "very close" to reaching a cease-fire agreement. But when asked if it could come by Feb. 3, the date of the Tet Chinese New Year, he said, "I do not want to be a prophet."

Another prediction of an early cease-fire came from Chinese Premier Chou En-lai who told Japanese newsmen with a visiting delegation in Peking that he expected the fighting to end soon.

Tin Song (Live News) is financed by Hoang Duc Nha, who is Thieu's nephew and a close personal advisor. It said that when the cease-fire is declared the government probably will impose a 24-hour curfew requiring South Vietnam's 18 million residents to remain in their homes.

Hopes that an end to the longest war in American history would end soon were boosted Thursday by the joint announcement by the White House and the North Vietnamese delegation in Paris that

White House aide Henry A. Kissinger would meet with Hanoi's Le Duc Tho in Paris on Tuesday to complete the text of a Vietnam settlement.

The "little talks" involving law and language experts of both sides took place in Paris today as usual. The technical talks started toward the end of the 22nd round of the Kissinger-

Tho meetings. Apart from a suspension during the December bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong, diplomats have been meeting continually in Paris, spending long hours on the protocols which will accompany an eventual agreement.

Neither side has specified exactly what the experts are working on.

The Thai Premier in reporting that a cease-fire would be extended to Laos and Cambodia about 10 days after it goes into effect in South Vietnam said he was concerned about the time lapse. He said in recent days

North Vietnamese troops have moved close to the borders of Thailand, especially in Laos.

Announcement of the Kissinger meeting with Tho and chief Hanoi negotiator Xuan Thuy came from White House Press Secretary Ronald A. Ziegler in Key Biscayne, Fla., and from the Hanoi delegation in Paris on Thursday.

The joint announcement Thursday by presidential Press Secretary Ronald L. Ziegler and the North Vietnamese delegation to the Paris peace talks said Kissinger will meet Tuesday with chief Hanoi negotiators Le Duc Tho and Xuan Thuy.

Ziegler said Kissinger was going back "for the purpose of completing the text of a (peace) agreement" and the North Vietnamese said the talks will be held "to complete the agreement on the end of the war and re-establishment of peace in Vietnam."

U.S. and Hanoi technical experts, who have been meeting daily since Jan. 2, held another round of talks today in the Paris suburb of Gif-sur-Yvette to work out cease-fire details to accompany an accord.

Government sources in Saigon said Thursday that Lt. Gen. Vinh Loc, military consultant to the South Vietnamese delegation in Paris, had left for the French capital carrying to the technical experts the changes proposed by President Nguyen Van Thieu in a Washington-Hanoi cease-fire draft. The sources said Thieu has accepted the revised draft "in principle" but suggested about a dozen changes.

Ziegler said Kissinger will leave Monday for Paris but declined to speculate on how long it would take him to complete his work. Ziegler also refused to comment on the widespread belief that, except for minor changes, both sides already have agreed on a cease-fire text and the main purpose of the meeting is to initial it.

Seven Slain...Murder House Once Owned by Jabbar

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Seven persons, including five children, were methodically slain Thursday at an expensive Washington house purchased by basketball superstar Kareem Abdul-Jabbar as a spiritual center for his Muslim sect.

At least four men seen fleeing from the home were being sought. Both the victims and the suspects were black. Police and neighbors said the killings, apparently committed in execution style since no signs of struggle were reported to have been found, occurred sometime prior to 4:30 p.m. EST when one of the home's occupants returned from a shopping trip and heard a commotion inside.

He walked to the rear of the four-story stone house and saw four men running through the back yard. Some neighbors said there was an exchange of gunfire at that point but police would not comment on these statements.

A woman was said to have run from the house about the same time and told some neighbors, "I know who they are, and they will pay!" Police dogs were brought into the area and a search was conducted of the neighborhood. Guns were found in at least three locations near the house. Two were reported to have been pistols and the other a sawed-off shotgun. One pistol was found two blocks away.

A neighbor said she saw several men entering the house sometime before the killings. She said they carried suitcases or attache cases. It did not arouse her suspicion because the house, in addition to serving as a residence was also the national headquarters of the Hanafi Madhab Muslims, a group said to be one of 73 Muslim sects across the nation.

Jabbar, formerly known as Lew Alcindor, is the star of the Milwaukee Bucks of the National Basketball Association. He purchased the home in April, 1970. After living in it for a while he turned it over to the religious group, which has no connection to the better known Black Muslims. He continued to visit the house periodically and often stayed there overnight during trips to Washington.

Jabbar said Thursday night he could envision only "crazy people, lunatics" as responsible for the slayings of seven persons in the fashionable Washington home he had purchased for use as a Muslim community. The Milwaukee Bucks' 7-foot-2 center, though visibly shaken, consented to a brief interview without pictures or tape in his modern condominium residence in suburban Mequon.

Strategy Of S. Viet Fighting

SAIGON (AP) — Three U.S. and South Vietnamese campaigns were under way today to strengthen President Nguyen Van Thieu's hand for a cease-fire.

U.S. B52 bombers and fighter-bombers carried out more than 400 strikes against base areas that the Communist command could use for political and military operations.

The government radio disclosed that a campaign called Long Me — Mother's heart — has been launched throughout the country to encourage Communist personnel to defect and to increase efforts to root out members of the Viet Cong's political underground.

In a third campaign, Thieu was reported to have ordered his military field commanders, national police and security units to make all efforts to protect the civilian population and territory Saigon claims to be under its control. The president reportedly ordered government forces to resist all Communist efforts to create disorders and intensify terrorist activities during a cease-fire.

Scattered fighting was reported from the demilitarized zone to the Mekong Delta, and the Saigon command said enemy forces made 54 rocket and mortar attacks on government positions during the 24-hour period ending at dawn.

The biggest battle erupted between Quang Tri City and the demilitarized zone 19 miles to the north, an area which Hanoi and Saigon have been contesting since last summer.

The U.S. Command reported that its fighter-bombers flew 323 strikes across South Vietnam during the 24-hour period ending at 8 a.m. today and the B52s flew more than 80 strikes, dropping about 2,400 tons of explosives.

The raids were heaviest just below the DMZ and along the Saigon River corridor northwest of the South Vietnamese capital.

The South Vietnamese government charged in a letter to the International Control Commission that "indiscriminate shellings" by Communist forces had killed or wounded more than 1,000 civilians during the last three months of 1972.

The protest said the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong made 207 rocket and mortar attacks into populated areas during October, November and December; killed 180 civilians, wounding 892 and burned out more than 200 homes.

Laotian military sources in Vientiane said Pathet Lao forces rocketed the army headquarters at the airfield of the royal capital of Luang Prabang, 135 miles north of Vientiane Thursday night, but only damaged the roofs of several warehouses and slightly damaged a plane.

Support for Blue Law Revisions

By MATT SPIRENG

ALBANY Area representatives in the State Senate and Assembly support varying revisions in the Sabbath or so-called Sunday Blue Law, which are scheduled to be enforced beginning this Sunday in the Town of Woodstock, and which may soon be enforced throughout the county if some Woodstock merchants carry out threats of making sure they aren't the only stores closed down.

"The present law is shot full of ambiguities," said Assemblyman H. Clark Bell, who explained that he supported a local option bill last year, but that the bill did not meet with approval.

Senator Edwyn E. Mason is also in favor of a local option bill, which would allow individual townships and municipalities to make their own decision on store openings on Sundays. "Much of the so-called Blue Law is an anchorman geared to a past age," said Mason. "There is no question that it's totally out of date and unjust."

A town justice in the Dutchess County Town of Stanford has meanwhile invoked what he called "good old-fashioned common sense" to dismiss charges against a store owner accused of breaking the Blue Law.

In his written decision, Justice Frank T. Weber said, "To convict or accept a plea of guilty in this matter would serve no purpose other than to set off a chain reaction, merchant against merchant, neighbor against neighbor. Only God knows where it would end and how many people would suffer."

"I think the present law is antiquated," Assemblyman Emeel Betros told The Freeman. He explained that he would like to see "workable" revisions in the law.

While basically supporting the Blue Law as it now stands, Senator Richard E. Schermerhorn said he would like to see the law rewritten to remove ambiguities.

Special

Bills modifying the Blue Law have been introduced in the past, including one last year, but none have been passed into law. They have either not made it through the Senate and Assembly or been vetoed by the governor.

Conferences are being held in Albany concerning another bill which would revise the Blue Law. Bell said, but introduction or passage of the bill is expected in the immediate future. Even if a revision bill is passed, it will probably be made effective at a later date, it was pointed out. "There is no immediate magic relief in sight for the counties and communities," Bell said.

Bell also pointed out that the present Sabbath Law has been held to be constitutional by the State's highest court, the Court of Appeals, as recently as last year.

On the one side of the issue, there are the labor unions and the Council of Churches, who are in favor of Sunday closings, said Bell, and on the other side are the large chain stores.

Small individually owned or family owned stores such as many of those in Woodstock are caught in the pinch, however. Both Betros and Schermerhorn pointed out that they don't want to see the so-called "mom and pop stores" squeezed out of existence because of the Blue Laws.

The legislators also feel, however, that people should not be forced to work in the larger chain stores on Sunday, and none came out in favor of a repeal of the Blue Law.

"Religious questions aside, there is a good segment of the public which feels that the worker should have one day off a week," Mason said.

"In general, we need a complete revision of the so-called Sabbath Law," Mason said, however. "Practically any citizen who does something around the house on Sunday is violating the Sabbath Law."

"But I don't want to see the thing thrown open so everything is open seven days a week," Mason added. "The remedy might be local option; that sounds most sensible to me."

Bell said he would be mailing out a questionnaire in the near future which will include a question dealing with the Blue Law. "I'm hoping to get a good response," he said.

LEARY COMES HOME — Timothy Leary, the LSD messiah, arrives at a London airport en route to Los Angeles with girlfriend Joanna Harcourt-Smith. Laughing and smiling, Leary was arrested by U.S. narcotics agents immediately after arriving in Los Angeles. The former Dutchess County resident and Harvard professor faces an old prison term and a host of new drug charges following his escape from a California prison farm 28 months ago. Leary spent some time recently in Switzerland, and then moved to Afghanistan, where he was taken into custody by narcotics agents. When he escaped in 1970, Leary was serving a ten-year sentence for marijuana possession. He now faces an escape charge, and 19 additional counts of drug smuggling and conspiracy. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Unanimous Vote for City Budget

By HUGH REYNOLDS

KINGSTON "It must be a pretty good budget, they all voted for it," commented John E. Finch (D-5th Ward) chairman of the Common Council's Finance Ways and Means Committee, after Mayor Francis R. Koenig's $6.7 million budget sailed through the Council Thursday night.

The vote was 12-0 with one alderman, Edmond J. Roux (R-Ninth Ward) absent due to illness.

There was never any doubt whether Koenig's budget, which gives city taxpayers a $5.45 tax reduction per thousand dollars of assessed valuation would pass, although a unanimous vote, particularly in an election year, was not expected.

There was some criticism, though mild on the budget, generally in the area of revenue sharing. Alderman Brian D. Smith (R-Third Ward) opined that more money should be spent on police and fire protection and on the city's streets and sewers. Smith said "are in the worse condition they've ever been," and that the administration, even though it has the revenue sharing money from the federal government, is spending about as much this year as it did last year in that area.

Alderman Titus B. Sims (R-13th Ward) wanted to know whether the $403,000 budgeted in revenue sharing funds was an anticipated revenue or whether the city was budgeting money already received. Finch said that most of it had been received, some $385,000 in retroactive payments for 1972.

Sims, though voting for the budget, pointed out that expenditures had risen 10 per cent from 1972 to 1973 and said "we headed for trouble unless we reduce spending." Sims predicted that if spending increases continued that taxes would have to be raised next year.

In other action, the aldermen approved tax reductions on several uptown business properties. Paris of Kingston Inc. of 334 Wall Street had its 1971 and 1972 assessments reduced by $2,000 to $8,800; Sam and Rebecca Gold of 322 Wall Street had their 1971 and 1972 assessments reduced by $1,900 to $7,350; Sam J. Scudder Jr. of 308-310 Wall Street had his 1971 and 1972 assessments reduced by $17,800 to $11,200 and Morris J. Fletcher of 324 Wall Street had his assessments for the years 1969 through 1972 reduced by $2,600. City and school taxes will be remitted with interest to those property owners who successfully took the city to State Supreme Court for the assessment reduction.

The meeting was adjourned in memory of William Kitzos, a commissioner on the Water Board, and Alderman-at-Large T. Robert Gallo's aunt, Mrs. Josephine Spadafora, both of whom died this week.

New Paltz Unit Construction ...Awaiting Memorandum

The State Urban Development Corporation is only awaiting the signing of a memorandum of understanding by the New Paltz Village Board to begin the formal process leading to the construction of 100 units of mixed senior citizen and family housing in the village of New Paltz, according to a UDC official.

The signing of the memorandum is expected to take place at the next regular meeting of the village board, scheduled for Monday, Jan. 29. Daniel Keane, project assistant at the Mid-Hudson Regional Office of UDC, said Thursday that UDC was shooting for a construction start this spring, and completion 18 months after that.

Senior citizen housing will make up 70 of the 100 units. Thirty of these units will be for senior citizens in the low income bracket, and 40 units for moderate income senior citizens. The other 30 units will be family units in the moderate income range.

The site of the housing, near the old town highway garage in the village, will be divided by the proposed Fulton Road Extension in the village, and the south part of the site will be developed first, according to Keane. That site, housing all 70 senior citizen units, has the advantages of being closer to the village business area, and will eliminate the need for senior citizens to cross the major thoroughfare Fulton Road is supposed to become, Keane said.

Also in the senior citizen portion of the housing will be a community center, according to Keane, with a meeting room, laundry facilities, and a full kitchen.

UDC will have the site developed by a private developer, with the private developer overseeing the management of the project, and UDC overseeing the developer, Keane said.

A public hearing will be required before the project can begin.

UDC furnishes a 95 per cent mortgage to the developer, and the developer must provide a five per cent equity. Keane said UDC anticipates receiving some Federal assistance for the project.

Ten per cent will be taken off the top of all rent collected, and will go to the village.

With no final architectural plans having been drawn, and the project still to go to bids, Keane could furnish no exact cost figures, but he estimated the final cost of the project would be from $2.3 million.

Rents to be charged for the apartments have not yet been established either, but Keane said they would be in the area of $35 per room, and that a senior citizen low income apartment, with one bedroom, would probably rent for about $130-140 per month.

Ellenville Man Dies In Blaze

ELLENVILLE — A 72-year-old Ellenville man died Wednesday morning in a fire in his apartment at 28 Warren Street.

Ellenville village police said Henry Carl Paijean was found dead in his one-room apartment above a garage, at approximately 11 a. m.

Paijean, a retired merchant seaman who had lived in Ellenville for approximately 10 years, was pronounced dead at the scene by Ulster County Coroner Arthur C. Chipp. Following an autopsy, Chipp said that Paijean died of asphyxia due to smoke and fire inhalation.

The fire was reported shortly before 10:30 a. m. by a woman working in a nearby office who saw smoke coming from the building.

Paijean was the only tenant in the building owned by the Weiss Brothers, police said. Fritz Reiter, 80, a caretaker for the owners, entered the building and tried to rescue Paijean, but was driven back by intense heat and smoke, according to authorities.

The fire apparently started under the stairs leading to Paijean's room near a compressor used by the garage, police said. However, the cause of the fire has not yet been determined.

Police said the building was totally destroyed by the blaze. No estimate was given as to the monetary loss in the fire.

Meanwhile, the death toll in the January 6 fire at the Pine Grove Resort Ranch in Kerhonkson has reached eight.

Azeal Quinones, 22, of the Bronx, a patient at the burn treatment center in Albany Medical Center since Jan. 6, died Wednesday.

A hospital spokesman said the cause of death was second and third degree burns over 50 per cent of his body.

The bodies of seven other victims were found in the charred remains of the building following the early morning blaze.

Ellenville State Police said today that no cause has yet been determined for the fire. Investigation is continuing, authorities noted.

Schermerhorn 'Outraged'

By LYNN MULVANEY

ALBANY — "Outraged" at attempts to do away with competitive Civil Service examinations, State Sen. Richard E. Schermerhorn, (R-40th Dist.) will fight any such moves by introducing legislation which would make it "illegal for elected officials such as New York City's Mayor John V. Lindsay and Police Commissioner Patrick Murphy to appoint anyone who has not passed a competitive examination."

At a press conference, Schermerhorn accused detractors of the system of wanting to appoint and promote individuals of their own choosing rather than selecting individuals from Civil Service promotion lists.

"That's going back to the Spoils System," Schermerhorn charged.

The senator said he was also particularly incensed by the plan "for weakening the examination currently given to State Police candidates."

He said it is an attempt to bring minority groups into the State Police and while he sees nothing wrong with that, he doesn't feel that State Police standards should be lessened to accommodate them.

Schermerhorn said that "under the guise of concern and lack of representation of minorities, within the Civil Service system, appointed officials, including Lindsay and Murphy, hope to eliminate the basic structure of our merit system."

Support for Schermerhorn's position has come from the State Teachers Federation, Police Benevolent Association and the Civil Service Employee's Association. Jack Rice, legal counsel for CSEA, read a statement from his organization's president Theodore Wenzl at the press conference, which lent encouragement to the senator's proposed legislation.

Schermerhorn said that the "present merit system is a deterrent to political and appointed officials who use civil service as a reward to supporters with patronage jobs."

Meanwhile Schermerhorn investigated complaints from residents in the Wallkill area of Ulster County who informed him that the fence encompassing the 900-acre Wallkill Prison was to be removed by the State Department of Correction. They were reportedly worried for security reasons, he said.

Consequently, the senator met this week with State Correction

Commissioner Russel G. Oswald who informed him that due to high maintenance costs and painting of the fence that it will eventually be removed.

But, he explained, in the interim an extensive planting of multiflora rose would be installed along the fence. When the planting reaches seven feet and becomes impenetrable as is its characteristic, then the fence will be removed, Oswald said.

"Wallkill Prison is not a maximum security prison," Schermerhorn said.

Campus School Funds Provided in Budget

By WADE BURKHART

NEW PALTZ — Funds for the operation of the campus schools of the State University of New York, including the Campus School of the State University College at New Paltz, are provided for in the proposed budget for fiscal year 1973 of Governor Rockefeller.

Anxiety about the fate of the Campus School in New Paltz has been an annual event for several years, with relief only being provided by the announcement of the proposed state budget. Two years ago the Governor's Budget proposed doing away with the schools, but strong community sentiment saved them.

According to this year's budget, a final answer on the schools should be forthcoming in the next few months. It is proposed that the 10 campus schools in the state be budgeted at $4,850,641, a drop of about $122,000 over what they are receiving this year. Staff at the schools is proposed to be reduced by 13 statewide, from the present 378 to 365. It is projected that the New Paltz Campus School will lose one position.

The portion of the budget dealing with the campus schools, as furnished by an Albany-based spokesman for the State University of New York, says that the State University "expects to make recommendations within the year either to phase out the schools and enter into new contractual arrangements between the local school districts and the colleges, or to significantly alter the educational mission of the schools."

The University recommendation is to be based on studies of the campus schools now under way. According to the budget, "Implementation of the University's recommendations in this area is expected within three years of the start of the study."

Dr. Mario D. Fantini, Dean of the Faculty of Education at New Paltz, believed the studies referred to in the budget were the studies begun this winter by the colleges with campus schools, as mandated by the University Master Plan of 1972.

According to the Master Plan, colleges with campus schools, in conjunction with local school district officials, are to study the schools and deliver a "draft" master plan for the schools by March 1. Part of the campus schools' master plans are to be plans for joint financing by the University and the local districts. "with the understanding that the University will continue financial support of such schools only insofar as costs are incurred by special experimental and innovative activities which cannot be successfully conducted in public schools of the district."

However, Fantini's vision of what the New Paltz Campus School can and will be doing could make it eligible for full funding by the state.

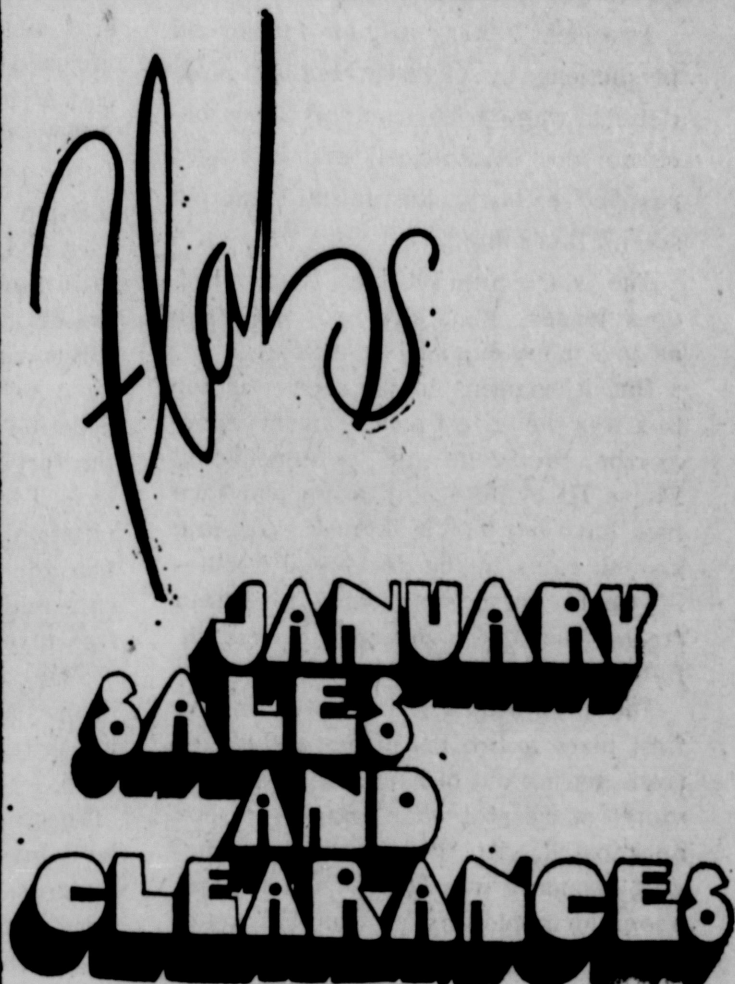

The New Paltz Campus School is being turned into an experimental center, where experimentation in new teaching methods, research, and regional service will be provided. As part of a Rockefeller Brothers Foundation grant to study improving public education on a regional basis, the Campus School is being turned into a regional center where experimentation in new teaching methods can be studied and perfected, for eventual distribution to the region's public schools.

Work is also being done on using the Campus School as a center for competency-based teacher certification, a now heavily emphasized program in New York State.

Fantini felt that the campus schools in the state would not all be subject to the same fate. He believed that some would be phased out, some become joint ventures with local schools — as some of the schools already are, and some campus schools would continue to be financed "pretty much as they are now."

The staff at New Paltz is presently in the process of turning that campus school into one that could fit into the last category, according to Fantini.

He said his feeling about the eventual fate of the New Paltz Campus School was one of "sober optimism."

Phase III a Gamble

President Nixon has gone far beyond predictions in virtually ending mandatory wage-price controls and because most Americans tend to resent restrictive laws, the initial reaction seems favorable.

The stock market has risen, business leaders generally are optimistic as are many high labor officials.

But it remains to be seen whether this was the wisest course because if—as the President said in announcing Phase III of his stabilization plan—we now have one of the highest economic growth rates in the developed world—it would seem necessary to retain strong controls in order to check inflation.

The program was instituted in the first place to prevent prices and wages from getting out of hand. It was much more successful than most persons anticipated. At the time it was begun, economy was below capacity and unemployment was up, unlikely conditions for inflation.

It is when economy swings to a point where demand exceeds supply that the threat of inflation is most evident. That's where we seem to be at this time. Industries are busy. Business generally is on the upswing and unemployment is more nearly stabilized. And it's at this stage that restraints have been dropped.

The situation seems contradictory except for one thing. Mr. Nixon's economic experts came up with what proved to be the right formula 17 months ago even though economists in the private sector, along with irate labor leaders, predicted disaster. In fact, all but one of the labor men on the original pay board walked out.

But the only effect their desertion appeared to have was to reduce the potential for friction within the board.

Certainly prices have risen, mostly in the food stores, but there is general agreement that without controls imposed in Phase I and Phase II, the cost of living would have soared.

What will happen now?

The Pay Board and the Price Commission have been terminated. The Cost of Living Council composed of top government officials, will not direct the entire stabilization program.

But restrictions on profits margins have been eased. President Nixon is counting on voluntary cooperation, with the threat to step in and restore controls if he deems it necessary, to check inflation. Companies, with the exception of those in construction, health care and the food industry, are legally free to hike prices.

From a lay view, the conditions just do not add up to where the line will be, or can be held on prices and on pay.

There are two additional factors, both involving the legislative branch. Congress must approve the President's economic powers beyond April 30. It also must refrain from excessive federal spending. The President has pointed out inflation can only be held in check if government spending is held in check. That is why he established the $250 billion budgetary ceiling.

But the President would be well advised to step in quickly and restore mandatory controls if his call for voluntary cooperation is not heeded. There is little to indicate that it will be heeded. Voluntary cooperation has not worked in the past.

And yet the President was right before.

Obviously he and his aides have studied the current economic situation with great care and believe this is the thing to do. We certainly hope his assessment is correct. It would be disastrous if he has misjudged the mood of the country and the attitudes of labor and management.

13 NEW SENATORS — Eight Democrats and five Republicans, ranging in age from 30 to 57, took seats in the U. S. Senate for the first time January 3. Joseph Biden Jr., a liberal Democrat whose only experience was one term as a councilman in Delaware, is the youngest at 30. William Scott, 57, a conservative Republican, from Virginia, is the oldest newcomer.

The Ad Agencies Strike Back

WASHINGTON — The latest report on smoking from the Surgeon General suggests that breathing cigarette smoke may be a hazard to the health of non-smokers.

This has started a clamor to ban smoking in elevators, airlines, restaurants, hospitals, doctors' lobbies and other public places. Already, a Ralph Nader suit has been filed to segregate the smokers and non-smokers on airlines.

At first, the mail poured into the Civil Aeronautics

Board, supporting Nader three to one. Then suddenly, the trend shifted. Now the mail is running about 50-50 on the issue.

Unknown to the CAB, however, the pro-smoking mail was inspired by Lorillard, the makers of Kent, True, Newport and Old Gold cigarettes. The company, not wishing its customers to be inhibited aboard airplanes, induced its advertising agencies to join in a secret letter writing campaign against Ralph Nader's suit. The plot was hatched by Lorillard lawyer Arthur Stevens in a confidential memo last November to Lorillard executive John Bresnahan, who directs where the company's advertising dollars will be spent.

Stevens drafted five model letters to the CAB and urged Bresnahan: "Could you get some of the (advertising) agency people to write these — by hand — on non-company letterheads, using home addresses and ask each one to get one or two more, similar, but not exactly the same."

Attack on Nader

In other words, Lorillard wanted a flood of letters to go to the CAB but wanted them to look like they came from ordinary citizens. The model letters contain such memorable and abusive phrases as "Who runs the CAB — the government or Mr. Nader?" and "Why don't you spend more time on preventing hijacking (sic), and less on smoking!"

At least two of Lorillard's ad agencies decided they would rather promote nasty letters to the CAB than risk losing Lorillard's old gold. Although the cigarette company refused to name the agencies, we had no trouble picking out the phony letters at the CAB and checking the return addresses.

Contrary to Stevens' instruction, not all the employees of the ad agencies changed his abusive phrases. We tracked their addresses to employees of Grey Advertising and D'Arcy, MacManus and Masius, both highly respected New York firms.

At Grey, a spokesman conceded that Lorillard had asked for the letters and that "four or five" persons working on the Lorillard account had helped out. But it was "never a corporate thing," he said.

At D'Arcy, MacManus and Masius, the account executive for Lorillard, Tom Brady, declined comment.

The lawyer Stevens first refused comment, then told us: "I knew the organized anti-smoking groups were engaged in a campaign to influence the outcome." He felt that contrary opinions "should be alerted and given the opportunity to make their views known."

Washington Whirl

Legal Heroin — On a confidential mission to Britain, the federal government's top "narc doctor" investigated the British system of permitting heroin addicts to receive legal "fixes." In theory, this cuts the profit motive from illicit narcotics, and some Americans are eager to try it here. But Dr. Edward Lewis, medical officer for the Federal Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, conceded the British system would be of dubious value in the U.S. He found that even British clinics are leaning away from heroin and toward intravenous doses of methadone. Lewis also noted that Britain has fewer than 3,000 addicts, far more controllable than the estimated 500,000 in the U.S. Providing legal heroin for American addicts, Lewis believes, would create new addicts without curing old ones.

Nixon Meats — President Nixon got rid of popular Peter Peterson as Secretary of Commerce because of his liberal leanings and openness with the press. Peterson had his own explanation. "My calves were too fat. I couldn't click my heels," he said. Now the President is going after the Commerce Department with a meatax. He isn't chopping services for businessmen so much as the new environmental work. Our sources tell us that cuts amounting to $70 million will be made in the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration. The White House, however, is trying to keep this quiet. NOAA executives have been told that the White House will deal harshly with anyone found leaking stories about the budget slash. One White House man reportedly warned that even top executives "will be fired if the leaks are traced to them."

Brass Ring — the brass ring, good for a free ride on the Washington Merry-Go-Round, is awarded today to Mrs. Dorothy Rozan, a retired housewife of Lansing, Mich. When her doctor-husband died a few years ago, she decided at age 61 "to do something useful." She joined the emergency unit of St. Lawrence Hospital, later collaborated with Anne DeRose to write a book telling others how to get involved in voluntary health service. Their book, "Volunteer Program CMHC — A Blueprint," is sold nationally. Mrs. Rozan, of course, contributes all her royalties to further preventive mental health and community involvement. When we reached her, all she wanted to talk about was how others, too, could serve. "There's a place for everyone, and everyone should be some place," she said.

Restraint Needed

WASHINGTON — The rumblings in Congress from members of the opposition party are evidently indications that President Nixon's second term will be subject to many challenges.

A threat, for example, has been made to block the confirmation of some of the new cabinet appointees unless Mr. Nixon agrees to let them testify freely before congressional committees. Demands are constantly being heard for "more information" on international affairs. Senator Barry Goldwater, Republican of Arizona, who supports the President, has pointed out that it is not practical to give congressional committees the details of diplomatic negotiations and that the conduct of foreign policy would be impaired if negotiations had to be reported to Congress.

The executive branch of the government has always taken the position in every administration that information about matters related to foreign policy will be conveyed to Congress, but only when a decisive point has been reached — not while an important negotiation is in progress and particularly when it is at a delicate stage. Senators seem to think that the President ought to keep committees continually advised about diplomatic transactions with other governments. This has never been the rule, and the reason is easy to understand — information could be "leaked" to the press which would cause nations endeavoring to help settle a controversy to refrain from participation at all.

Members of the Senate have been told in a broad sense what the difficulties are in getting peace with North Vietnam and the Viet Cong. The aid of neutral governments has been sought to persuade Hanoi to adopt a conciliatory attitude and make an agreement at Paris. But the insistence that the President's appointees must testify on whatever subject committees may seek information would be a considerable handicap in carrying on foreign relations by the executive branch of our government.

There also are controversies in Congress with the President about the expenditure of federal funds. The administration has been trying to limit spending. Judging by some of the comments on Capitol Hill, it might be thought that the biggest sums today are being spent on the Vietnam War.

Actually, the cost of domestic programs has reached the highest point in our history, and the real problem of the federal government is how to stop deficits. The administration has not hesitated to give the committees any data sought on the subject of expenditures.

The President's determination to hold the budget to approximately $250 billion will be successful only if both houses are willing to reduce appropriations. Mr. Nixon has declared that he will try in every way to cut expenses on the executive side, but this influence on the national economy can help to increase tax revenues in a period of prosperity.

The chief executive, in lifting most of the restrictions in the economic stabilization program, hopes that wage and price factors will move naturally as business conditions permit and bring larger and larger receipts to the U.S. Treasury.

The United States during the year 1973 will be operating under less regulation of the economy than it has in the last two years. An opportunity is given management to raise prices but not to a point that cuts down sales. The advice of labor-union leaders is to make their requests for wage increases conform to the profit trend but to omit excessive demands which would push up costs and bring more inflation.

The President knows that during Phase I and Phase II of wage and price controls management and unions have learned some lessons about the value of restraints. For certainly employment has steadily risen and inflation has been gradually cut down. The outlook for 1973 and 1974 is considered to be on the brighter side. What management and labor really need to accept is self-regulation as it relates to the whole economy and particularly to an increasing flow of revenues into the federal treasury.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

Life Is a Long, Long Time

The death penalty, brought into serious question as "cruel and unusual punishment" by the United States Supreme Court, may soon be tested by the State of Florida. Attorney General Robert Shevin, an urban New York type is asking the legislature to restore it as punishment for certain crimes.

I'm opposed. I have witnessed too many executions and attended too many subsequent trials to believe in it as a crime deterrent. That, however, is one man's opinion — mine. It has no legal weight.

Through the years I have found Southern justice to be fair, most especially in the higher courts. And yet there were unspoken, unwritten laws south of the Mason-Dixon.

There was a time when, if a black killed a black, punishment was light. If a white killed a black, jail sentences were enduring. If a black killed a white, it could mean the electric chair. The Southern states, which had lived in quiet fear of the mixing of races from the days of Reconstruction onward, made rape a capital crime.

Sometimes, in those days, justice was summary — consisting of a posse and a lynching. Now and then, they hanged the wrong man. Now and then, a state court convicted the wrong man.

A decade or so ago, before America desegregated to the point where the black was protected to the detriment of the white, a black girl near Tallahassee claimed to have been raped by four white boys. The crime was clearly a reversal of what had been written on the statutes.

I covered the story for a host of newspapers, North and South. Tallahassee was a small flower tucked in the garter of Florida. There was one newspaper, "The Tallahassee Democrat," one television station, Channel 6; and a one-track railroad to Jacksonville, 169 miles east.

The sheriff was Bill Joyce. He was in command of the court. It was a square musty room with an ancient hanging balcony. "Nigras" sat up there. Whites sat on the ground floor. The judge reminded the sheriff that the balcony was old. What, he asked, would happen if it collapsed? The sheriff was quick. "Instant integration, judge."

I had expected the white loungers around the pool halls to tell me that a black girl can't be raped. They didn't. The city was sick of the case before it came to trial. I have never seen so many men of substance beg off from serving on a jury. They were disgusted with the four white boys before the court convened.

The judge invited me to his home on a Sunday. He wanted to show me his hunting dogs. We chatted in late bronze sunlight. Sooner or later he would have to ask the question. He reached it.

"Why do you come all the way down from New York to cover a small case like this?" "It isn't small, judge. The four boys may be innocent. I don't know. But I'm here to listen and to find out what happens to white boys accused of attacking a black girl."

He understood. He was fair throughout the trial and more than fair. In rape cases North and South, the defense attorneys usually have a field day when the girl takes the stand. They ask the filthiest questions with impunity. It's done to establish the girl's character, they claim. Really, it is done to tear her character into shreds for prosecuting.

The balcony was jammed with blacks who sat wide-eyed in stony silence. On the main floor, whites were in pale-colored summery attire, squirming. Prosecutor Hopkins built his case carefully, legal brick by legal brick. He closed all the exit doors for the white boys.

He may not have wanted to do it — he had to continue to live in Tallahassee — but, like the judge and Sheriff Joyce, there was a primary substance called duty and conscience.

The jury listened patiently to the judge's charge and filed out past the pot-bellied stove to a room for deliberation. Black men could get life for this crime. They could even get the electric chair. But white boys . . . four nice clean boys out on a lark?

The verdict was guilty. In the story I wrote, it reverberated across the country in headlines. One of the boys was too young to shave. The judge meted out sentences. "Life." "Life." "Life." "Life." The judge looked at me, the outsider, the alien, before he tucked his robes upward and left the bench. I looked back. He and the people of Leon County had proved they had two-way justice before the matter of Civil Rights became a fire fight in so many big cities.

I watched the black girl leave with her mother, head high. And I wondered then — as I do now — if we don't tend to punish all malefactors too harshly.

Rolison to Dutchess Boards: 'Battle Lines Drawn'

PLEASANT VALLEY — The battle lines have been drawn between state and local control of education, proclaimed State Senator Jay P. Rolison Thursday night to a gathering of the Dutchess County School Boards Association.

The timing for his address could not have been better. Rolison stated that he had been appointed to the State Senate's standing committee on Education at 10 a.m. Thursday at the request of new majority leader Warren Anderson by verbal agreement over the telephone.

He is also chairman of the Committee on Local Government and belongs to the Codes and Judiciary Committees.

Rolison (R-39), and Assemblymen Emeel Betros (R-99) and Benjamin Roosa (R-100) fielded a set of prepared questions put together by 11 of the 14 school districts of Dutchess County, with some extras thrown in.

Speaking on the Fleischmann Commission's recommendation to give the state taxing powers for local districts in lieu of the local property tax, Rolison intoned, "The power to tax is the power to control" in stating opposition to that facet of the report.

"If a district wants additional enrichment programs, why shouldn't it have them," he asked rhetorically. He was cohoed in sentiment by Betros and Roosa on the local versus state control issue.

"If the Fleischmann Commission has done one thing, it has aroused public attention on education's problems," added Rolison.

And he termed the "chances of implementing the Fleischmann Commission's proposals as written" as "practically nil."

What of Governor Rockefeller's call for an Inspector General for the Department of Education?

Betros: "The governor may have been carried away with the Welfare Inspector General's success, and 'I don't think there is enough support.'"

Rolison: "I'm not persuaded there are cheats and frauds in the Education Department . . . as in welfare."

He and Roosa added that the governor has not as yet defined what this Inspector General's job would be.

On the property tax issue, Betros commented that this proposal, in various forms, had been defeated by referendum in four states during the past general election, and he said a possible alternative might be to "pass on more money from the state and freeze the local property tax."

The addition in allocation's in the governor's proposed budget of some $28 million was categorized by Betros as $48 million for formula growth and $50 million in "new monies," which may in reality be more because of the corollation of the state and school district fiscal years.

Betros explained that the New York State School Boards Association suggestion of more aid to districts extending their school year represented a "radical change."

He added that he was "not opposed to the concept," but felt that a mandatory referendum was a better way of handling the issue than the previously proposed permissive referendum.

Roosa, of Hopewell Junction, is a freshman legislator and said he had found Albany "without getting lost." He was opposed to placing negotiating costs under the Taylor Law on the state because "state takeover could create more problems than it would cure," and he felt that the "higher level of government, the less economically beneficial it is."

Speaking on an admittedly touchy question, whether there should be a reduction or limit on district contributions to teachers' retirement plans, Roosa said it would be extremely difficult to "go contributory" because "how do you take away from an employee what he has already received?"

Rolison also commented, "We don't know what the governor in state aid from weighted ment) has in mind when he says 'equalization of opportunities' and we don't know what his priorities are."

Other questions touched by Rolison included a change in average daily attendance to for districts (he felt it would keep the state out of things, dated programs).

Dear Abby

Quit Proposing... Cool It for a While

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
© 1973 by Chicago Tribune
N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 70-year-old man and recently lost my wife after 49 years of a happy marriage. My loss was almost unbearable at first, but I faced reality and tried to live again.

My problem is this: I have proposed marriage to four widows, all near my age. They are receptive to a point, but all say there is no need for sex at our ages.

I am a healthy man and had a good sex life with my wife until she died, so why should I be expected to forget about sex now?

What should I tell these ladies when they turn me down on this important part of life? I say sex is healthy and normal and adds to a happy marriage. Please advise me.

NAMELESS, PLEASE
DEAR NAMELESS: Perhaps these ladies have turned you down because you appear to be preoccupied with sex. You say you "recently" lost your wife. Yet you have already proposed to four widows. Cool it. Surely there must be an eligible widow who will see things your way. But don't rush her.

DEAR ABBY: I am a teen-aged girl who has hairy legs. I don't see anything wrong with it because it is natural. My mother and older sisters say it looks ugly and if I don't shave my legs I will be the butt of guys' jokes, and besides it is not considered good grooming for a girl to go around with hair on her legs.

I don't see why society should dictate whether I should have hair on my legs. I think this is strictly a matter of my own choice.

What do you think?
NATURALLY HAIRY
DEAR HAIRY: It's your hair, your legs and your choice. If you choose to keep the hair on your legs, you will soon find out to whom it matters, and to whom it matters not. Since you like the natural look, I suggest you keep it.

DEAR ABBY: God help me, Abby, but I made the biggest, most stupid mistake of my life. I tried to steal a piece of costume jewelry from a store and was caught red-handed by a detective posing as another shopper. The foolish thing is, I could have bought it as I had the money. I don't know what came over me.

I was booked, and now I have a criminal record which I am afraid will follow me for the rest of my life.

How will this affect my future? I am planning to get married soon. Should I tell my fiancée? Will this affect my voting? Will I ever be able to get a passport? Can I hold a civil service job? Will my record follow me into another state? Please tell me everything! I am so sorry for what I did. I wish I could wake up and find it was all a bad dream.

HEARTSICK
DEAR HEARTSICK: Laws vary in different states. Talk to a lawyer and get the facts. I think you may be greatly relieved.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "BROWNIE": Yes, give him another chance. Tell your husband you will meet him at the next Alcoholics Anonymous meeting, and afterwards you will talk about a reconciliation.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. For a personal reply, write to ABBY: Box No. 69700, L.A., Calif. 90069. Enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope, please.

Hate to write letters? Send $1 to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069, for Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." (See Dear Abby Mon. thru Sat. at 9:07 a.m. WKNY-1490)

Doing the Right Thing

The following letter has been chosen as the prize-winning one for this week. A copy of Emily Post's Etiquette has been sent to the writer who asked that her name be withheld.

Dear Mrs. Post:
I am an elderly widow of limited means. By skimping and sacrificing I manage to maintain a car — a necessary luxury because I am active in many organizations.

Most of my friends do not have their own transportation, although some can afford it easier than I. My problem is that these women expect me to take them to all the various functions we attend, but they never offer to help pay the cost. I have tried hinting by stopping for gas when they are with me and griping about the high cost of operating a car — to no avail. Nor do they reciprocate in any other way — like occasionally buying me my admission ticket or treating me to lunch.

Perhaps a word from you would make them realize that "thanks" is not enough for continuous free taxi service.

MINNIE
Dear Minnie:
So many people seem to have this same problem, and it is not easy to deal with. It is undoubtedly no more than thoughtlessness on the part of the riders, but that does not help the driver.

You must make your hints more obvious. You might even have to be as blunt as to say, when making your plans to pick them up next time, "I'm very low on cash this week and the car's almost out of gas. If we want to go to the meeting in it, I'll have to ask you all to help me pay for a tankful."

You have every right to say this and it shouldn't even have been necessary, so don't worry about the politeness of it. Having good manners does not mean you must be a patsy at the mercy of your inconsiderate friends.

We "Paint" the Local Scene

Our photo catches American artist Robert Peck at work in the Place de Tertre atop Montmartre in Paris. Many artists of all nationalities are to be found here the year round, much to the delight of tourists who buy their works. Peck is busy painting the Montmartre scene, much as our editors and advertisers "paint" the Mid-Hudson scene. Church in background is the Sacre' Coeur. Only thing exceptional about the scene as shown is the copy of The Daily Freeman photographed in it . . . but, then, The Daily Freeman is always showing up in exceptional places, doing exceptional things.

It's true that no copy of The Daily Freeman hangs in the Louvre. Nor is our daily edition auctioned at Sotheby's. But we do keep coming up with a "masterpiece" now and then. A masterful piece of reporting or commenting or cartooning or advertising, that is.

Applying the graphic arts . . . printing, photography, illustration, layout . . . we "paint" the local scene, your scene, the Mid-Hudson one, against its national and world background.

Instead of canvas, of course, we use newsprint. Instead of paint, ink. And rather than art for art's sake, we create artful newspapering for your sake.

If you're a subscriber to The Daily Freeman, you are a connoisseur of the local scene in all its color and perspective. If you're an advertiser, you are a patron whose commission will be rewarded with a good seasonal showing at the cash register.

Coleman-Red Hook Saturday; New Paltz at Rondout

Ellenville Meets Marlboro in Key UCAL Contest

By IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON While fans of Red Hook and Coleman keep their collective fingers crossed, Ellenville High School's basketball team heads to Marlboro tonight hoping to knock the Dukes from the ranks of the unbeaten.

Should the Ellies turn back the Dukes, Coleman will slip into first place in the UCAL South and Red Hook will gain a game in the loss column. But if Marlboro makes it seven in a row, coach Joe Ciampi's cagers will open up just a trace of breathing room.

As a footnote to the proceedings in Marlboro and all they'll mean to the standings, Coleman will host Red Hook Saturday night in a game postponed from this evening.

It makes for a good race, that's for sure.

The Northern Division, which has a good race for second place, but which is allowing Liberty to run away with the important position, has New Paltz at Rondout, Liberty at Wallkill, and Onteora at Pine Bush on the card.

Of the four so-called "tough" teams on its schedule, Marlboro has yet to face three: Ellenville, Coleman, and Liberty. But if the Dukes win against the other, Red Hook, is any indication, the league may spend the rest of the season looking at Marlboro from behind.

The Ellies are fresh from a victory over Coleman and should be ready for Marlboro. Ellenville will no doubt use its tenacious pressing defense against the Dukes. It could give them fits, for point man Charlie Jones isn't an exceptional ball handler and quick Ray Younger will be all over him.

Should it come down to a battle of the boards, Ellenville will call upon Leon Ware, Ricky Kaplan, and Al Steele. But Marlboro has Mike Moriello, Denny Pesavento, and Jim Pagano, a formidable trio.

The experts are saying that Ellenville will either blow Marlboro away with the press or fall completely apart if the Dukes can handle it. The Ellies have responded both ways this season.

The Coleman-Red Hook series has turned into a hotly contested affair and now that the Statesmen and the Raiders are both fighting for a title, that situation is unlikely to lessen.

Coleman figures to get more than the two points it received from Phil Palladino against Ellenville, and the Statesmen play good defense.

But Red Hook hasn't had any trouble scoring points and probably won't in this one either, especially with big Kevin Kelly on top of his game.

What Red Hook has to do is stop Coleman from getting its share of buckets. That's where the Raiders have been inconsistent.

The situation in the North remains the same. Someone is going to have to beat Liberty for the others to make any headway and the longer it takes, the less chance there is of overcoming the Redskins.

Wallkill is as good a bet as any what with the potentially explosive Ralph Calderon on its side, but realistically, the Panthers are no match for the Sullivan County quintet.

In the other games, Onteora will look to hold on to second place, while the New Paltz-Rondout survivor will take the third spot.

Problems for KHS and Sawyers

By IRA FUSFELD

KINGSTON If Kingston High School's basketball team is going to beat Arlington at the Field House tonight, it will have to do it without the services of forward Tom Turco.

And if Saugerties High School is going to score its first league win of the season when it hosts Poughkeepsie, it will have to do it by playing a smarter brand of ball.

Turco, the husky hustler who was injured Tuesday against Ketcham, is definitely scratched for tonight. Past that, coach Mike Rienzo isn't sure, although the feeling is Tom will be back for next week's tilt at Beacon.

The televised replay of the Ketcham game appeared to confirm that Turco suffered the deep bone bruise on his back from the hard spill he took after being fouled, not from the immediate contact between he and the Indians' Mark Esser.

Though he did not break any bones, Turco is reportedly still in enough pain to force his benching tonight.

Soph Fred Jackson will get a starting nod in place of Turco. "Tommy has more experience and is a little better defensively, but I don't think Freddie will hurt us," said coach Mike Rienzo in commenting on the switch.

The rest of the KHS lineup will remain the same. Cory Chambers and Chuck Jackson will go up front, with Raymond Gay and Dave Decker in the backcourt. That combination, along with Turco, has led Kingston to two straight wins.

The Maroons have won three of their last four, to even their league record at 3-3 and rise to 3-4 overall.

Arlington also stands 3-3 in the DCSL, having beaten Saugerties, 64-45, Tuesday. The Admirals get most of their points from guard Scott Gleckel, and are covered on the boards by Charlie Benton and Larry Riley.

The Sawyers haven't been able to perform anywhere near the way they did in the Onteora Tournament (which they won), so far in the league. Coach Larry Marcus chalks it up to inexperience, which has caused his players to take bad shots and commit too many turnovers.

Poughkeepsie rebounded from an overtime loss to Kingston by trouncing John Jay earlier in the week, prompting Pats' coach Pat Siracuse to say, "They're the best I've seen."

The Pioneers seem to have the material, but coach Bob Stauderman has had trouble getting a consistent effort from his forces.

Komives Does It

By United Press International

Butch Komives saved his best for the end.

Komives had scored only eight points Thursday night but was fouled while rebounding at the final buzzer. He calmly dropped in two foul shots that enabled the Buffalo Braves to defeat the Atlanta Hawks, 127-125.

George Trapp's two free throws with 22 seconds left tied the game for Atlanta and Buffalo took possession. Randy Smith took a shot for the Braves just before the buzzer and Komives, a 6-foot-1 guard, was fouled as he tried for the rebound.

Bob McAdoo led Buffalo with 32 points and Elmore Smith added 30. Walt Bellamy had 32 for the Hawks and Lou Hudson 30.

In the only other National Basketball Association game, Nate Archibald scored 32 points and had 14 assists to lead the Kansas City-Omaha Kings to a 119-96 victory over the Phoenix Suns.

The triumph broke an 11-game road losing streak for the Kings and extended the Suns' losing streak at home to four games.

Texas Track Coach

EL PASO, Tex. (UPI) — Ted Banks, the track coach at Long Beach State, Thursday was named the track coach at the University of Texas at El Paso. Banks replaces Wayne Vandenberg, whose dismissal by UTEP officials last fall caused several members of the track team to quit. Banks said he hopes to regroup the team.

THE BIG PUT-ON — It may have been a put-on for the record 22,096 fans on hand at Madison Square Garden as Pedro Morales, heavyweight wrestling champion, sends a heckler sprawling in the ring. The victim turned out to be the manager of Morales' opponent, a newcomer named Moon-Dog Mayne. Morales also made short work of Mayne.

Ski Jumping Feb. 3-4

ROSENDALE Tournaments to be conducted ski jumping has had a successful early season at Bear Mountain where crushed ice is used to condition the hill. Bear Mountain ski jumping will be suspended on the weekend of February 3 and 4 in deference to the Rosendale program.

According to Don Wallace, the two weeks snow making lead time will give the Rosendale Club ample time to condition the hill for the important tournaments which will qualify the top men to the U. S. Eastern Amateur Ski Association Jumping Team which will be supported by the association for competition at the National Championships at Shapeming, Michigan on February 10 and 11.

The Rosendale hill record of 217 feet was established two years ago by Hugh Barber, Middlebury College ski jumper who hails from Brattleboro, Vermont.

Other notable performances on the Rosendale jump have been by Franz Keller, 1968 Olympian from West Germany, Per Coucheron from Oslo, Norway, Scott Berry from Deadwood, South Dakota and Avery Caldwell from Middlebury College.

Acker's built up a 54-40 halftime lead over the Carriage House and then coasted home. Jerry Hawkins added 19 points and Ron Thomas added 16. Dan Jordan (12) and John Cook (11) were in double figures for the losers.

Ketterer's jumped to a 32-12 quarter lead over Boyle's and were in front the rest of the way. Mike Jordan and Bill Hoffay potted 15 apiece and

Erving Is Doctor

By United Press International

The Virginia Squires' players complained bitterly to officials throughout their game with Denver Thursday night, claiming the Rockets were illegally missing foul shots on purpose in attempts to control the rebound for a chance at two points instead of one. Several fights broke out on the court as a result of the disagreements.

Luckily for the Squires, however, Doctor J., better known as Julius Erving, was around to remedy the situation. Erving scored a game-high 36 points to lead the Squires to a 116-110 victory.

In the only other games, Kentucky defeated Memphis, 104-100, and Indiana downed Dallas, 116-109.

Virginia led by 10 points several times, but the Rockets kept coming back and closed to within two points early in the fourth quarter. Bernie Williams' hot outside shooting and the inside play of Erving kept the Squires in front. Dave Robisch led Denver with 25 points.

Dan Issel scored 28 points and grabbed 13 rebounds as Kentucky handed Memphis its seventh straight loss. The Colonels outscored Memphis, 30-18, in the second quarter to take a 63-47 halftime lead and were never seriously threatened thereafter. Randy Denton and Gorge Thompson each had 20 points for the Tams.

George McGinnis had 31 points and Billy Keller added 27 to spark Indiana's victory. Rich Jones of Dallas led all scorers with 32 points while former Pacer Bob Netolicky added 28.

Ulster Courses... Variety for Spring

STONE RIDGE welding training, real estate, Ulster County Community College will offer a variety of new evening courses during its 1973 Spring Semester.

The new courses, which begin Thursday nights, beginning Feb. 1, under the supervision of Professor Walter Hopkins, chairman of the Department of Engineering Technologies, and George E. Vizvary, an assistant professor of drafting.

Intended for those who have no previous practical experience in welding, the course will include oxy-acetylene, electric and shielded arc welding.

The real estate course at UCCC will be broken into two divisions: Principals of Real Estate I and Principals of Real Estate II. Real Estate I will meet Wednesday nights; there will be two sections of Real Estate II on Tuesday and Thursday nights.

Real Estate I and the Tuesday section of Real Estate II will be held at Kingston High School, while the Thursday section of Real Estate II will be held at the Stone Ridge campus.

Instructors for the courses, which begin Feb. 1, will be S. James Matthews, a Kingston attorney and president of the Ulster County Bar Association, and James Fisher, a Kingston attorney and former assistant district attorney.

Introduction to Criminal Justice will be held Thursday nights at Kingston High School. The instructor will be Theodore Dietz.

The course is one of two that will be offered in the field of law enforcement during the Spring Semester. The other, Criminal Evidence and Procedure, will be taught Tuesday nights at the Stone Ridge campus. The instructor for the latter course will be Joshua Koplovitz, a Woodstock attorney.

Newsletters, Editing and Publication will meet Monday nights, starting Feb. 5, at Kingston High School. James Haviland will be the instructor.

The course will include technical training and practical experience for individuals interested in writing for various news publications and magazines. It should also be helpful to persons engaged in or planning to do public relations work for businesses, service or civic organizations and schools.

Registration for each of the evening courses will be held Jan. 30 and 31 from 7-9 p.m. at UCCC's Stone Ridge campus. Further information can be obtained by calling the college.

City GOP Names Fabbie

KINGSTON, N.Y. (AP) — Fabbie was unanimously elected city chairman at a meeting of the City Committee Thursday night in the Ulster County Courthouse. Fabbie, 52, was nominated by City Vice Chairman James Rapp and had his nomination seconded by George Carpenter, a deputy county clerk, took over the reins of the Kingston Republican Committee. There were no other nominations for the post vacated by Edward T. Feeney on Dec. 31. Immediately following Fabbie's nomination and acceptance speech, James B. Thompson, another vice chairman, made a motion for the resignation of the four vice chairmen, himself, Rapp, Joseph Markle and Burt Ellis. Thompson contacted after the meeting, explained his motion. "We want Frank to feel free to choose the people he wants on his executive committee. He has our (the vice chairmen's) complete support. In fact, I honestly feel that there's nobody in the committee who is capable of doing the organizational job that Frank is going to do." Fabbie said he will be named that Democrat Francis R. Koenig went in two years ago with an all-time 4,400 plurality. Fabbie, at this stage of the game, is optimistic that Koenig can be defeated. "I certainly think he can be taken," Fabbie said. "There is no one that can't be shot down. We're going to reach the voters. We're going to present them with some facts that maybe they overlooked when they voted before and we hope that with that and with the type of candidate we will offer, we will swing the pendulum." County Chairman Albert Spada said he was "extremely pleased" with the city committee's selection of Fabbie and said that Fabbie's election gave "new faith in the Republican effort in the city."

Peace Vigil Planned

KINGSTON featuring Everett Hodge, President of the local NAACP, will speak on the late Dr. Martin Luther King's strong peace marches in Washington, anti-Vietnam War views. San Francisco, Los Angeles, The Ulster County Peace and Chicago. The vigil starts at 11 a.m. in Academy Green Park, Broadway, and will be followed by a rally at noon (Australia, Holland, Sweden, Canada and others) helped to bring the U.S. back to negotiations. "But," said Paul Atkinson, Chairman of UCCP, "only continued pressure by the American people can bring this atrocious war to an end." Atkinson warned people "not to be fooled by talk of a cease-fire agreement on the eve of the Inauguration. Nothing has been signed. Even a Cease-fire agreement does not mean real peace."

Residents of Kingston, Saugerties, Woodstock and surrounding areas have chartered a bus to the large demonstration in Washington, and will leave early Saturday. A car caravan is also planned. It is expected that many local people who cannot attend the Washington Rally will participate in the Kingston vigil and rally.

Meeting Set

The New Paltz Village Planning Board will hold a public meeting tonight at 7 o'clock at the Village Hall to make a decision on an application to build a colonial type shopping center between Plattekill and Hasbrouck Avenues. The board had held a public hearing and meeting on Tuesday to hear all relevant public opinions on the proposed project.

NEW YORK (AP) — Stock market prices opened mixed today as promising economic news was counterbalanced by continuing uneasiness over Phase 3.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up fractionally and advances on the New York Stock Exchange had a slight edge over declines.

The market failed to sustain an early rally Thursday, and analysts said investors continued to be sidelined by hesitation over the implications of Phase 3. Concern over rising money rates and inflation remained prime concerns.

Brokers said news that a Vietnam cease-fire agreement was close to completion already had been discounted and didn't have the strength to overcome investor inhibition.

The Dow, which had bounded ahead more than 5 points during the morning, closed unchanged at 1029.12. Declines on the Big Board edged out advances by a narrow margin in moderately active trading.

Quotations by Loeb, Rhoades and Co., members of New York Stock Exchange and American Stock Exchange, Kingston Plaza, Kingston, N. Y. Joseph Garvita, resident manager. Phone 331-1900.

Ellenville Village Restricts Dumping

ELLENVILLE, N. Y. (AP) — The village of Ellenville, which has the problem of a rapidly depleting landfill, has restricted dumping to five days a week and has voted not to renew its contract with the Town of Wawarsing for dumping at the village landfill when that contract expires on March 31.

The village and town boards met Thursday night to discuss the overall refuse problem in Wawarsing. The village landfill at Berne Road and Canal Street, closed for dumping on Sundays, will be closed one other day of the week, although Mayor Robert J. Dowling did not specify which day of the week that would be.

"We've gotten to the point where we no longer have the room (for the town). We have to keep what we have left to ourselves," Dowling told The Freeman. Dowling said that engineering studies completed last year indicated that the village landfill would be depleted by the end of this year.

Town Supervisor Frank W. Harkin and the town board have agreed to allow village residents to dump at the town dump in Kerhonkson one extra day a week, but the town board is not happy with the March 31 "deadline" being imposed by the village on town dumping in the village landfill.

Harkin said that he and the town board are pressing their search for a new town landfill and may have something definite to report by the end of this month. "It's possible, though, that what with titles, searches and other legal papers that we may not have the site wrapped up by March 31," Harkin said.

kin said, indicating that he felt the village's deadline was "somewhat arbitrary."

"We're all in this together," Harkin said. "It's a problem we're all facing." He said the village would be welcome to use the new town landfill when it is operational.

Following the town-village meeting, the Town Board met to discuss the disbursement of some $67,000 in federal revenue sharing funds. Harkin reported that he has placed the money in an interest bearing bank account until the Town Board decides how it wants to spend it. The Town Board will meet on Jan. 25 to again discuss revenue sharing.

Resolution Introduced

NEW YORK (UPI) — A resolution asking the state legislature to allow New York City to legalize prostitution was introduced Friday in the City Council.

Councilman Alvin Frankenberg sponsored the measure calling for the establishment of "red light" districts in industrial areas with prostitutes receiving regular medical check-ups.

He said that legalizing prostitution would cut crime, reduce the spread of venereal disease, curb police corruption and relieve court overcrowding. "It is something that has been going on since the beginning of time," he told a news conference. "At this date, you're not going to outlaw prostitution."

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day to pick up ideas and ideals you had in the past but may have temporarily neglected to put in motion because of other pressures. Be sure you let influential persons not usually available during the busy week know about them, however, and get their backing. Also fine for pleasure, romance, new activities.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) If you study that new project wisely, you may find that this is a good day to put it in operation to your benefit. Join with mate later for a good time. Show generosity.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) Fine day for making your dwelling more delightful and charming, so get busy at that early. Consult with family first to win their enthusiasm. Back their ideas, and have true harmony.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) Get busy running errands, shopping, getting in touch with friends and relatives and make this a happy and most active day. Handle transportation matters well, also. Try not to get to bed too late tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Make those improvements to any property you may have that will add to its value, comfort, beauty. Get a

Avoid the use of temper. Reason is the keynote.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) Plan how to get your routine career work done better and faster and use more imagination for best results. Get in touch with a co-worker and show you are more willing to cooperate in the future. Out to the social in p.m.

IF YOUR CHILD IS BORN TODAY . . . he or she will be one of those delightful young people who has a very high regard for self and if you encourage your child to bring out the best in him or her there can certainly be a fine personage emerging in this most fascinating chart. Give as good an education as you can afford and slant it toward the cultural, the scientific, the legal, but be sure to give fine religious training early in life during the formative period, when the soul is most receptive.

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

SISTER SPATS: (Q.) My sister and I can't get along to save our souls, and it is driving our mother crazy. I am 13, my sister is 11. I am trying to teach her right from wrong. For example, when she cleans the bath tub she leaves the cleaning powder spread all over everything. It's a mess. I offer to show her how to do it right and she starts a big argument.

When something like this happens, my mother accuses me of picking on my little sister. — in the Spot in Ohio.

(A.) It is not your duty to teach your sister right from wrong except by example. The actual teaching, including giving advice and administering any discipline necessary, should be done by your father and mother.

Try to remember this. Conduct yourself as you have been taught to. Do chores assigned to you as you have been taught. If your sister asks your advice on any matter, give it to her. But do not volunteer it.

You need her and she needs you. As you grow older you will in all likelihood grow closer. For now, keep things between you as friendly as you can. One of the best ways to be friendly with a little sister is to respect her and not try to boss her.

BLOWS: (Q.) My sister and I had a big argument. She hit me but I didn't hit her back. Mom told us both not to hit anyone. She said no one in the family hits anyone. Dad heard the fuss and came in and hit me and then my sister.

He said if we don't stop fighting, he and Mom will get a divorce. He's been saying that for two years. If my sister and I can't hit each other, why should he hit us? — Beat Up Brother, Age 15, in Texas.

(A.) Suggest to your parents that you have a family conference — one hour long. Each member gets to talk 10 minutes about what bothers him. No one butts in. In the last 20 minutes you all try to get together on some answers to your problems.

In your 10 minutes, suggest to your parents that some definite rules are needed and that both of them should go by the same rules. Explain to them, too, that blows with a hand or fist are very dangerous, especially to girls or women.

Tell them it upsets you to hear constant talk of divorce. This may suggest to them that your family is not running smoothly and needs some repair work done.

Try to get an agreement to hold a family meeting once a month. There you can discuss your differences much more effectively and maturely than by squabbling when you get into a dispute over some small matter.

(Jean Adams reads and considers every letter, but she regrets that she cannot answer each personally. Mail your questions or comments to Jean Adams, care of The Daily Freeman, P.O. Box 2402, Houston, Texas 77001.)

Record for Robert Trout

NEW YORK (AP) — On March 4, 1933, a nervous young CBS radio correspondent named Robert Trout covered the inauguration of Franklin D. Roosevelt.

On Saturday, as President Nixon is sworn in for four more years, Trout will be back behind the microphone, covering his 11th consecutive presidential inauguration for the CBS Radio network.

It's a broadcasting record. But Trout was an old hand at inauguration-watching even before he became a reporter.

He grew up in Washington, D.C., and recalls that "every four years school was let out so we could watch the show. It was sort of like the circus coming to town."

"We went to see the parade. We were great connoisseurs of parades. We were kind of upset at Harding's inauguration because he rode in an automobile instead of a horse and carriage."

Now 63 and semiretired, Trout remembers of the Washington of his youth as completely unlike today's highly security-conscious model. It was a freer, far less-suspicious era.

If you were up early, he said, you might have seen Herbert Hoover or Calvin Coolidge out for a stroll on the streets of the city the morning of their respective inaugurations.

In President Woodrow Wilson's day, he said, the White House even held a public reception each New Year's Day.

"If you wanted to, you could line up at the White House — and it was a long, long line — and go in and shake the hand of President Wilson," he said.

Trout began his broadcasting career in 1931 as an announcer for WJVS, a Northern Virginia station. He joined CBS a year later.

He took to the roof of the old Willard Hotel in Washington to report on the ceremonies at Roosevelt's first inauguration; his ground-level colleagues were Ted Husing and Norman Brokenshire.

He recalled the day as blustery "and cold as hell." The mood of official Washington was grim.

"Things were pretty rough with the Depression, and some people were talking revolution," he said. "It was pretty tense."

"But then Roosevelt made that speech in which he said 'the only thing we have to fear is fear itself.' And he rode down the avenue with this big smile and everybody was sort of reassured."

"It sounds silly, but it was really quite a psychological thing, quite a lift he gave the country in that one afternoon. It was amazing."

"He seemed so confident, so healthy and so vigorous and absolutely unafraid of anything. And everybody said, 'My God, maybe it's going to be all right after all.'"

Massive antiwar demonstrations are scheduled to be held in Washington during Nixon's inauguration Saturday. Were there any demonstrations during Roosevelt's inaugural ceremonies?

"Lord, no," Trout said. "It never would have been thought of. The country was really quite different then. Everyone would have been profoundly shocked at something like that."

Today's hand is made up. We have given North the same cards he held yesterday but have given South a rather different no-trump holding. The bidding starts with North transferring to hearts and then bidding three clubs but at this point South realizes that his 16 high card points may be the perfect cards for a club slam.

He bids three diamonds as a start of his slam campaign. North has no slam interest and just goes to three hearts whereupon South bids three spades, his second cue bid.

North still has no slam interest but he does hold two five-card suits and bids four clubs, whereupon South takes him to six.

North isn't particularly happy but he is in the position of the pilot flying blind in the fog with one motor conked out. He has to make the best of it.

A Cross-Examination

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The defense in the Pentagon papers trial has begun cross-examination of a high Army staff official whose testimony has accused Daniel Ellsberg and Anthony Russo of possibly helping the North Vietnamese by releasing top secret documents.

Defense attorney Leonard Weinglass, at the start of cross-examination late Thursday, sought to prove that much data in the report which dealt with the Tet offensive of 1968 was common knowledge and appeared in newspapers and books. He also tried to show that the report wasn't sensitive and could not have helped North Vietnam.

DePuy maintained that the report, prepared by then chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Gen. Earl Wheeler, could have been "useful" to a foreign power opposing the United States. He said that Wheeler's assessment of the Tet offensive "states the condition of Vietnam's forces, the strengths and weaknesses of that attack."

Lucrative Pact

FARMINGDALE, N.Y. (AP) — The award of an Air Force fighter contract to Fairchild Industries Inc. has aroused visions of new jobs and bulging payrolls reminiscent of aerospace prosperity years ago on Long Island, according to the office of Sen. James L. Buckley, CR-N.Y.

Formula that states that for every new aerospace job, three-and-a-half other jobs spring up in the Nassau-Suffolk counties area.

The Air Force did not disclose the amount of the Fairchild contract, which calls for the construction of 10 pre-production aircraft. The final product is expected to cost $1.4 million each and the Air Force is known to want between 600 and 700 planes.

Suffolk County Executive John Klein said Thursday that Fairchild's contract to develop the new A-X close air support attack plane probably amounted to Long Island's "biggest single economic shot in the arm" in several years.

Officials here at the firm's Republic Division, which will do the work, estimated an increase of 1,800 jobs by the end of 1974 when the development phase will be over.

Selection of the Fairchild A10 prototype over a prototype built by Northrup Corp. of Los Angeles was based, the Air Force said, on the results of flight tests and evaluation of each contractor's proposals involving costs of a proposed first buy of 48 production aircraft plus life cycle costs of the proposed plane.

The project is expected to reach its peak in 1978 and if Fairchild retains the contract after 1974, it will have to hire an estimated 4,500 new workers and more than triple its current companywide $30 million payroll.

Company officials also referred to a "ripple effect," a money," an official said. "They have not been terribly active just lately."

The bank shooting began when four armed men attempted to rob a bank branch located in a hospital. A woman screamed and someone notified troops guarding patients in one ward.

Two Killed in N. Ireland

BELFAST (UPI) — Two men were shot and killed, one of them during a bank holdup police blamed on the Irish Republican Army, in two incidents Thursday that raised the Northern Ireland death toll in 3½ years of violence to 686.

Elsewhere, bombings badly damaged a Roman Catholic church and a school in the mainly Protestant village of Desertmartin, 30 miles from Londonderry. Police reported no casualties.

The first victim in Thursday's shooting was killed by troops during a holdup in a Belfast bank and the second victim, a Catholic, was found shot dead in a shopping area in the city.

Security officials said the bank robbery was an attempt by the IRA to obtain funds to buy arms and ammunition. "They could be running short of Later, officials said the dead man was a Catholic and a member of the IRA. In the second fatality, police identified the victim as Joe Weir, 50, and said gunmen forced him to leave a bar 300 yards away shortly before his body was found.

The trouble in Northern Ireland stems from an IRA campaign to unite the mainly Catholic south and the mainly Protestant north. The violence this inspired has spread to religious extremists and security forces.

Nixon Inaugural...Peace Big Topic

WASHINGTON (UPI) — television appearance on Nov. 6, election eve. President Nixon came to the eve of his second inaugural today confident that he has all but secured a treaty ending the Vietnam War.

Ending his stay in Key Biscayne, Fla., Nixon arrived here Thursday night where he planned to celebrate his swearing in for a second term. Nixon has spent several days working on his inaugural address, his first public statement to the American people since he made a campaign

They said that Kissinger felt the agreement, which now both sides openly concede exists, could have been initiated as early as last Friday. One official was said to have described it as "Madison Avenue gimickery."

Asian leaders including South Vietnamese President Nguyen Van Thieu. Haig will call on Thieu again on Saturday for more discussions on the amended peace treaty.

Salmon sources said that Thieu had accepted the ceasefire draft "in principle" but still seeks some changes mainly relating to its implementation. Nixon was expected to get into the swing of his inauguration tonight when he escorts his family to three separate inaugural concerts at the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

Two Cabinet Choices Confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only two of President Nixon's six new Cabinet choices will be ready to begin work with him when his second term starts Saturday.

The Senate Thursday confirmed without debate the nominations of Frederick B. Dent as Secretary of Commerce and Claude S. Brinegar to head the Department of Transportation.

Scott said, meanwhile, the delays on the nominations were "for the sake of politics and headlines."

He gave no indication when Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr., Nixon's special peace emissary, would return from his round of consultations with Southeast Asian leaders.

Corona Faces 25 Life Terms

By DOUG WILLIS
Associated Press Writer
FAIRFIELD, Calif. (AP) —

Corona's attorney, Richard Hawk, immediately moved for a new trial, and a hearing on his motion was scheduled Jan. 29.

Corona sat silently through the monotonous repeating of the verdicts without an outward sign of emotion except to grip tightly the edge of the table before him.

JUAN CORONA (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Corona, a 38-year-old farm laborer, was found guilty of first-degree murder. The jury separate reading, affirmation of 10 men and two women and recording of the 25 individual verdicts stretched for eight days.

Corona's wife, Gloria, and about 20 relatives, including his four small daughters, sat home later that "I do feel Juan Corona deserves another trial," until the 15th guilty verdict was read, and then sobbed quietly through the reading of the remainder. "I don't think they had enough evidence. I still doubt I made the right decision," Mrs. Underwood also said

$38 Million Phone Settlement

WASHINGTON (AP) — The largest job-discrimination settlement in the nation's history, a $38-million pact providing lump-sum payments and promises of quick advancement, has been signed by the largest U.S. conglomerate, the American Telephone & Telegraph Co.

The pact calls also for hiring more men as operators and clerks and more women in outside craft jobs.

The National Organization for Women said the $15-million back-pay provision was "chicken feed" compared to the $4 billion that NOW claims the Bell System owes its women employees in retroactivity. NOW said, however, that the measure was "substantiated in light of previous settlements by other employers."
